HIS ASSAILANTS ESCAPE.

Robbery Was Undoubtedly the Motive, as the Dead Man's Clothes Were Rifled.

There is evidence to support the theory

At about 3 o'clock this morning residents At about 3 o'clock this morning residents in the vicinity of Ninth and Gratiot streets heard a pistol-shot.

Miss Maud Zalter of 811 South Ninth street was too ill to sleep. A moment after the shot was fired she heard somebody loudly moaning. She hastily awakened her father, Frank Zalter, a car-repairer. He dressed himself and hurried across the street, where he found a man lying prostrate on the sidewalk on the Ninth street side of James Rossi's grocery, with his feet up near a gasoline tank and his head near the curbstone. His head was all bloody and he was moaning feebly.

gasoline tank and his head near the curbstone. His head was all bloody and he was moaning feebly.

Zalter got Groceryman Rossi out of bed, and the latter came down-stairs with a lamp. Together they examined the wounded man. They found that he had been shot through the right temple. He was lying on his face, with his hat and a pistol tucked under him. A few feet away from him his pocket-book lay, open and empty. His pockets were also turned inside out.

Zalter and Rossi notified Officers Byrne and Brank, of the Central District, and they rang for an ambulance. Before that conveyance arrived, the man died.

At the Mörgue, his clothes were searched, and, from papers found therein, it was learned that the deceased was August Gohl of 1914 South Thirteenth street.

Gohl was a fish merchant, 42 years old. He came here from St. Paul, Minn., last September with his wife and three small children and made his home at 1914 South Thirteenth street. He made a living by selining throughout the city and suburbs fish which he had shipped here from the North. Among his customers was a saloon-keeper, in East St. Louis. This saloon-keeper, who is also said to be a horse trader, owed Gohl a bill for fish. He promised to send Gohl the money yesterday, but failing to do so, Gohl decided to go over in person last evening and collect the bill.

He left his home about 5 o'clock, telling his wife he did not expect to be home until late, as he was going to make quite a long trip. He took his pistol with him so he would not be held up on his return in case he got his money.

Gohl's whereabouts from the time he left home until he met his death are so far unknown.

Mrs. Gohl is prostrated with grief over her husband's untimely end. The neighbors are also terribly shocked. They all declare him to have been one of the best of husbands and to have always been exceedingly happy at home. They think that he was murdered, at home. They think that he was murdered, for they can not imagine any motive that could induce him to take his own life.

There is strong evidence to support the theory of murder. His pocket-book was found lying two feet from his body and his pockets were turned inside out. This theory is also borne out by the statement of a colored woman, named Kate Emory, who lives at 921 Gratiot street. This woman, who is about 50 years old, came to the Coroner's office and stated that early this morning she was aroused by angry voices across the about w years old, came to the Coroner's of-fice and stated that early this morning she was aroused by angry voices across the street from her home. She peeped through her window and saw four men. One was in his shirt sleeves. He and two of his com-panions were arguing with the fourth man. She heard the latter say: "I don't owe you a cent, I tell you. I always pay my debts." Then she closed her window. A minute later she heard a shot, and, look-ing out, saw the man who had spoken stretched out on the sidewalk at Ninth and Gratiot streets.

ing out, saw the man who had spoken stretched out on the sidewalk at Ninth and Gratiot streets.

Another point that tends to indicate that he was murdered is that there is another wound on his head beside that made by the builet. There are also bloody finger marks on the top of his head.

The police were inclined at first to the belief that Gohl comitted suicide. In the Harrington & Richardson 32-caliber revolver that was found beneath Gohl's body just one chamber was empty. They argued that he simply shot himself through the head and fell dead. Sergeant Dawson scoured the neighborhood of the shooting this morning and interviewed Miss Maud Zalter, the young lady who first heard the fatal shot. She told him she heard no noise of any kind before the shot, although she was awake. The Sergeant takes this statement as an indication of probable suicide, arguing that if Gohl had been murdered on the corner she would have heard angry words before the shooting and retreating footsteps immediately after.

ing and retreating toolsteps infinediately after.

Mr. Zalter, who found the body, inclines to the suicide theory. Mr. Rossi, on the other hand, thinks Gohl was murdered, "Some pretty tough people hang around this corner," said he, "and when they'll come into a store at 11 o'clock at night and hold you up with a gun they would just as soon shoot you."

Gohl was a magnificent specimen of physical manbood. He was 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighed 250 pounds. He was quite a handsome fellow, too, with a brown mustache, imperial and blonde hair. He was rather plainly dressed in a gray sack coat. a handsome fellow, too, with a brown mustache, imperial and blonde hair. He was rather plainly dressed in a gray sack coat, dark pants and vest, brown soft hat and gaiters. In his pockets were found a chattel mortgage, a pipe, cigar holder, handkerchief and a receipt from A. O. U. W. Lodge No. 107, St. Paul, Minn. William Belt is the East St. Zoulsan whom Gohl went to see on Friday evening. Belt owed him 220 for a horse. It has not yet been ascertained whether or not Gohl saw Belt and collected the money.

TROUBLE WITH INDIANS.

White Settlers in Kalispell Valley Clash With the Red Skins.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 4.-The trouble between settlers and renegade Indians of Kalispell Valley, which has been brewi for a long time, has at last resulted in an open conflict and serious trouble and bloodshed are sure to result, unless the Government at once steps in with troops to protect the settlers. Hostilities commenced last Tuesday when three settlers named Wm. Jared, "Bid" Jared and Oscar McLaughlin were attacked by a band of redskins led by Big Sam, who attempted to drive them from a quarter sction of land on which they were residing. He opened things by drawing and iron bar from under his blanket and felling William Jared to the ground.

The other Indians then rushed in with knives and clubs, and after a short fight, the whites, all badly hurt, succeeded in reaching their boat. They opened fire on the Indians, killing one, the others escaped, dodging behind trees, where the whites dared not follow, being largely outnumbered by the reds. The Government of England asked nothing for expenses at Corinto.

Foreign Minister Matus said it is now safe to say that a settlement has been reached, and that the British marines are already embarking at Corinto.

FILLEY'S ME-TOOS IN THE SENATE.

Lyman, Goodykoontz, Orchard and Harrison Vote With Republicans.

FOUR DEMOCRATIC BOLTERS.

There Is Prospect of an Early Agreement on an Election Bill That Will Be Acceptable to All Parties.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, "Mo., May 4.—The action of the Senatorial Little Four of the Phelps-Filley combine - Lyman, Goodykoontz. Orchard and Harrison-in voting with the Republicans yesterday, was the biggest sensation of the extra session.

The Post-Dispatch had predicted almost daily since the session opened that these Democrats were prepared to bolt party lines whenever they got their orders, but their Democratic confreres had all along pooh-poohed the idea, and insisted that they had been misrepresented. They are not doing it now.

they had been misrepresented. They are not doing it now.

The Post-Dispatch said Thursday that part of the scheme of the combine was to force the Senate Committee on Appropriations to report the appropriation bill favorably in order to be ready to adjourn at any force the Senate Committee on Appropriations to report the appropriation bill favorably in order to be ready to adjourn at any time, and that if the committee refused to report, Lyman, who is the leader of the Little Four, would force the fight in the Senate. This was also regarded as an unjust reflection on the Senator from Kansas City. But before the Senators had gotten fairly in their seats Lyman handed Senator Incaester, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, a demand for a meeting of the Appropriations Committee, a demand for a meeting of the Appropriations Committee at 10 o'clock signed by himself and the three Republican members of the committee.

As a matter of fact, Senator Lancaster, as he explained to the Senate, had only had the bill in his possession for three days and there was absolutely no reason for forcing a vote in the Senate, except a determination on the part of the combine to show its strength and intimidate weak-kneed Senators and Representatives.

During the regular session Lyman, as Chairman of the Railroad Committee, and second on Corporations Other than Railroads, and Harrison, as Chairman of the Committee on Corporations Other than Railroads, had held up and smothered bills affecting corporations until no action could be taken. Yet they were virtuously indignant yesterday at the idea of the Committee on Appropriations failing to report a bill in three days after it had been receiver.

The vote yesterday was a record-maker a bill in three days after it had been receiver.

The vote yesterday was a record-maker so far as the Democratic Little Four is concerned. It is only fair to say that Senator Kennish and other Republican Senators who are in favor of railroad legislation voted for party advantage and that the combine cannot depend upon their votes when the issue comes squarely down between their party and their constituents. But the constituents of the Little Four can paste it in their hats that they have been betrayed and if they need any further evidence of the fact they will find it in the votes next week whenever a test comes between the interests of the Combine It in the votes next week whenever a test comes between the interests of the Combine and the interests of the People.

The cappers and cuckoos of the combine were exhilarated last night. "You see what we told you. Phelps has got the Senate solid. He'll do what he pleases. No fellow servant bill, and adjournment when he says so."

"WE'LL GET TOGETHER."

And Then Mr. Spencer Says an Election Bill Will Be Passed.

cial to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 4.-The plans of the Republicans of the House are subject to change from day to day, and essubject to change from day to day, and especially after Speaker Russell makes a trip to St. Louis on the same train with Bill Phelps and Sam Byrns. And that is what he did yesterday. But if Representadive Selden P. Spencer, who has charge of the election bill in the House is on the inside—and Mr. Spencer is the most reputable of the Filley lieutenants in the Legislature—the status of the Safety Committee bill, so far as the House is concerned, is in this shape. A Post-Dispatch correspondent met Mr. Spencer yesterday before the House adjourned and asked him:

"What are you going to do with the election bill in the House?

"We will have an election bill early next week. We will take up the Senate substitute the first thing Monday and disagree. The Senate will then ask for a conference committee, and we will get together."

"I understand that the principal point of disagreement will be the election commissioners."

City want a commissioner elected."

Mr. Spencer was informed that there had been no visible demand from Kansas City for that feature of the bill.

"Well, then," said the sponsor for the lower House bill, "I am not prepared to say that I will insist upon that. What we want is an election bill that will satisfy all parties. If there is not an agreement it will not be my fault. I do not think that the manner of the appointment of the commission will be a serious obstacle. We can probably agree upon that."

WANTED-"ARGUMENT," Before Action Can Be Taken on the Fellow Servant Bill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 4.—With neither Bill Phelps, Flim-Flam Flanagan, Speaker Russell, Goodykoontz, or any other members of the combine, in the city to-day, the capital looked like a deserted village. The Senators and the Representatives who remained are out fishing, and no one could tell, from the lobby of the Madison House or been in session for a year. Ex-Senator Cochran of St. Joseph was in the city vesterday, ready to appear before the Senate Committee on Labor in the interests of a railroad fellow-servant bill. F. W. Lehman, general attorney of the Wabash, who had been expected to appear in the interests of the railroad companies, telegraphed to Senator Feers that he could not be present. Mr. Cochran, speaking of the matter to the Post-Dispatch correspondent, said:

matter to the Post-Dispatch corresponding said:
"I was asked to appear and make an argument, but, in the absence of Mr. Lehman, I thought it would be better not to say anything. I am sufficiently acquainted with methods of delay to know that, if one side had appeared and the other had no representation, it would have afforded a pretext for postponement. A fellow-servant bill should be reported at once, and, as a matter of fact. I guess the committee knows the of fact, I guess the committee knows the situation as well now as it would after an situation as well now as it would after an exhaustive argument."

The House Committee on Labor held a meeting yesterday for the purpose of giving Mr. Higbee of Schuyler County a chance to explain the provisions of his fellow-servant bill, now before that committee. Mr. Julian was also invited to appear before the committee and express his views on fellow-servant legislation. There was no definite action taken on any of the bills before the committee.

taken on any of the bills before the committee.

Mr. Gill of Clay County introduced a resolution instructing the chairman to appoint a subcommittee to draft a general bill as a substitute for all of the bills before the committee—Gill and O'Dell for and Grubb, Mc-Pherson, Gray and Jones of Hickory against, while Moore of Stone preferred not to vote.

Mr. Grubb, chairman of the committee, said that a special railroad bill would be reported early next week—perhaps not before Wednesday, as representatives of the railroads desired to be heard before a bill is reported.

If Grubb knows what he is talking about (and he is on the inside of the Phelps-Filley combine), it is not improbable that a Republican House, in pursuance of the plan of tilloombine, may send a railroad fellow-servant bill to the Democratic Senate, to be killed there.

Mrs. Leppe, succeeded in having the case laid over for further testimony until next Saturday morning.

Mrs. Leppe her husband and little Charlle, over whom all the trouble arose, Mrs. Leppe having resented with eggs his chastisement by his teacher, were in court early. Mrs. Leppe hould need considerable training before she could stand a season of baseball, as she is rather fleshy. She is also rather muscular. Miss Madden, however, is not far behind her when it comes to muscular development. The young lady came into court with her companion teacher and her flock of pupils at about 10:20 o'clock, accompanied by Charles B. Stark, autorney for the School Board, who conducted the prosecution. Miss Maden is tall, of splendid figure and exceedingly attractive personal appearance. She was attired in a neatly-fitting fawn-colored suit and her dark eyes flashed beneath a large black straw hat, trimmed with white flowers, as she told the story of the eggs.

"I was sitting at my desk, reading a statement sent to me by the principal," said Miss Madden, after preliminary questions from Mr. Stark, "when there was a rap at the door. I was busy and responded by saying, "Wait a moment, please. There was an other rap in a minute and I again asked that the person wait. Instead Mrs. Leppe came in and threw the eggs. When she got through I remarked: 'I hope you are satisfied.'"

Col. Martin indignantly denied the imputation, but continued his questions.

"You were transferred from the Penrose to the Bates School, I believe. Was it for cruelty to children?"

"No, sir; it was as a promoted teacher."

"No, for cruelty to animals, either?" interjected Prosecuting Attorney Mulvihin. Miss Madden was requested by Mr. Stark to state the result of the eag fusiliade.

THE DEFENSE

Court Adjourns in the Duestrow Inquiry Until Monday.

DR. J. K. BAUDUY TESTIFIES.

The Defendant Makes No Attempt to Creste a Scene in the Court-Room.

UNION, Mo. May 4.—The last expert of the defense went on the stand this morning in the person of Dr. J. K. Bauduy, the well-known St. Louis neurologist. He has been held in reserve by Gov. Johnson because of his reputation and the unusual amount of care and study he has expended upon the case. It has been a hope of the defense that by the testimony of Dr. Bauduy they could win their case out in a blaze of glory

Dr. Bauduy's testimony at first related to his qualifications for expert testimony. He related his years of experience and mildly

Dr. Bauduy's testimony at first related to his qualifications for experience and mildly remarked hat he thought he knew something about the subject. He then, without further questioning from Gov. Johnson, went on te tell how at Attorney Johnson's request he had gone to see Duestrow. He had been violently prejudiced against Duestrow, owing to newspaper reports of the crime. He studied him carefully for a long time and always under the impression that the man was shamming. He understood the motive of the defendant for simulation and he accordingly tested him with every possible means at his disposal.

For weeks and weeks he kept up these efforts to unmask him without success. He knew that if his insanity was real it must develop along certain particular lines according to the distinctive form of the defendant's insanity, which came to the witness through Dr. John H. Simon, who had been asked by Dr. Bauduy to watch the defendant. This was the phonograph delusion and cocomitantly with this came the auditory hallucinations and the nature of the insanity began to take shape.

The witness questioned the defendant on these hallucinations. He noticed that he said "they" spoke to him. This "they" was characteristic. The fact that these hallucinations were of so vulgar a nature Dr. Bauduy thought was also additional evidence of insanity. About this time there was an outeropping of hypnotic delusions.

The AGE INFLUENCES DELUSIONS.

To the physician's eye there is a certain photographic picture of the insane mind of the present day. Insane people of to-day talk about phonographs, telephones and other mechanical contrivances. In other ages it would have been politices, religion, science or whatever was the dominating idea of the age. This, therefore, in Duestrow attracted the attention of an experienced physician.

The witness said he used to get angry with him, and tell him to quit his nonsense and help Gov. Johnson all he could with his case, but without influence.

One night in November, in the presence of his son, Keati that witness finally diagnosed the case as one of paranola.

Dr. Bauduy declared that Duestrow's paranola was not an unusual type, but very characteristic despite the allegations that it had been made up particularly to suit Duestrow's case. Dr. Bauduy told of his visit to the jail last night and described the scene given elsewhere in these dispatches.

Duestrow was very fretful during this

On cross-examination, Dr. Bauduy testified that he had only received $1,000. Although he thought more was due him, he was afraid that he would not get it, owing to the uncertain condition of Duestrow's affairs.

"Don't you really think you will get any more?" asked Mr. Meriwether.

"I don't know, but if Dr. Bernays gets his $15,000 and the lawyers, who always take care of themselves, get their fees, I'm afraid there won't be much left for us."

Dr. Bauduy was asked as to an expression in his book to this effect. "No medical expert should ever prostitute his calling by having any interest, financial or otherwise, in any case."

He identified it as being his but declared

He identified it as being his, but declared that he did not think his receiving $1,000 gave him any such interest. He was simply telling facts. A pairty $1,000 did not make any difference to him. In regard to the use of the opthalmoscope, Dr. Badduy declared that this was a humbug, a fad, used by a few who wanted to charge higher fees. He did not care what other authorities might say, "I've been practicing among the insane for twenty-five years, and if 1 don't know something about it I'm a jackass, and I don't believe I'm a jackass." Furthermore, the doctor declared, most voolferously, that he would not believe any alienist in St. Louis who told him he could use it. Someone might use it in a bungling manner, but he was a humbug if he did so. The doctor branched out quite extensively and hurled his wonderful vocabulary about with marvelous skill, causing some comment and much amusement.

Examined as to Greisinger's assertion that paranolacs "invariably" act out their delisions, the witness said this was because Greisinger was antiquated. He himself was willing to answer from Greisinger's grave that were he alive now he would not say any such thing. As to his statement that he had suspected Gov. Johnson of coaching Duestrow and of having asked him about it. Dr. Bauduy explained that this was only a naughty thought, such as a boy sometimes confesses to his mother.

Mr. Meriwether's effort was to show that by the witness' suspicions that Gov. Johnson ow some times confesses to his mother.

Mr. Meriwether's effort was to show that by the witness' suspicions that Gov. Johnson was coaching Duestrow. Dr. Bauduy admitted that such a thing might be done. Following this came a discussion, even at this late hour in the trial, as to the admissibility of evidence in Duestrow's life prior to the homicide. Mr. Meriwether put-a question to Dr. Bauduy as to whether the savagery of Duestrow's crime could be construed as being indicative of insanity. The witness stated that per se it was not, but that he believed it was so in this case. Then Mr. Meriwether put a question embodying the life of Duestrow just prior to the homicide, showing how evil his habits were and asked the witness if such a man should kill his wife and beap would it be indicative of insanity. The defense objected on the ground that this brought out alleged facts in the life of Duestrow prior to the homicide. In reply Mr. Zachritz served notice on the derense that he had witnesses to show how victous Duestrow had been.

A discussion followed on the lines which hive been laid down by Judge Hirzel, in which all the lawyers and Judge Hirzel himself took part. The question was finally decided by allowing the whole business to go over until the witnesses should be presented.

ceived in her apartments at the St. Nicholas, had never seen her before in the play. Consequently, his mind could not have been tappressed with the stage Mme. Sans-Gene, and there could have been no reflex action. It was rather the reverse. When he found himself ushered into her presence, he saw a rather dowldiy-dressed woman, with a slim figure, an exceedingly plain face, painfully so, almost, when the features are analyzed. In conversation, she is delightfully natural, just as on the stage, and she uses gestures just as freely.

In conversation, she is delightfully natural, just as on the stage, and she uses gestures just as freely.

Mme. Rejane talked about America in a way that did an American good to hear. She is charmed with American audiences, and says that New York people understand the French play even better than English audiences; in fact, that a New York audience is the most satisfactory public to play to outside of her own France. This is quite a marker for New York, in yiew of the fact that Mme. Rejane has just come from New Orieans, the Frenchiest town of America.

The American woman Mme. Rejane considers almost equal to the French woman in beauty wit, vivacity, good taste in dress and chic. "Ah, elles sont almathies, jolies, charmantes, les belies Americanes:" exclaimed the little actress, with a toss of her head and an upward glance of her beautiful eyes that made her face almost bewitching.

When the late scandas in New York high life were touched upon, in the course of conversation, Mme. Rejane and that Paris was no worse (how gratifying!) than New York. That there, as well as here, a scandal in high life is a sweet moreel—only its sweetness is sooner exhausted. Neither the French press nor the public busies itself with a salacious bit of gossip longer than a week. "We have not time for it!" asserted Madame.

Considering our reputation for being the busiest nation on earth, a day ought to be sufficient for us.

Anent the Castellane - Gould marriage, Mme. Rejane laughed heartily at the insistance on the part of the Gould family that it was a love strair. "The Castellanes have nothing," said Madame, "and the Castellane family and Indir Intimates have never denied that it was 'une marriage de convenance."

arrest. Upon conviction, Commissioner Bell will revoke the offender's license. According to Bell, no soliciting or delivery of drinks will be permitted inside these theaters.

A Post-Dispatch reporter made a tour of the dives Friday night to ascertain how far the instructions of the Excise Commissioner and police were being observed. In every case the passage from the saloon to the theaters was either locked or boarded up. At the Winter Garden patrons were obliged to pay 10 cents admission and then pass through a long, narrow hallway, alongside, but not connected with the bar. The usual performance was going on. but the few in attendance were only able to quench their thirst with "soft drinks." No waiters added discord to the orchestra by their old familiar cry of "order up, gentlemen; don't forget the bar," etc., and the dearth of women, in more or less abbreviated costumes, who were wont to fill the boxes upstairs, was particularly noticeable; On the whole the place presented a rather deserted appearance and the solemn, dejected air of the proprietor and attaches of the place gave silent testimony to their disapprobation of the new order.

In the Theater Comique and Esher's Theater the same closing of entrances to the theaters was observed, although the proprietors have devised a plan which helps the bar. Heretofore admission has been secured by purchasing a 5-cent drink at the bar. Now a prospective patron is charged loc for his drink and receives a coupon ticket which is torn off by the doorkeeper of the theater and the other end entitles him to a drink at the bar. But he must leave the theater and re-enter the saloon to obtain it. No women, except those on the stage, were noticed. Only "soft" drinks were obtainable.

Meyer then struck him in the face. Ruemmler drew a revolver and aimed at Meyer. The latter was not frightened and Ruemmler fired. The builtet passed through Meyer's right lung and lodged in his back. He was taken to the City Dispensary and was moved thence to his home, 2188 North Fourteenth street. Ruemmler was arrested and lodged in the Fourth Disprist Station.

Meyer said he struck Ruemmler and had a dispute with him about beer an hour and a half before the shooting. He declined to talk much about the affair.

TIED HIS BODY TO THE BANK Then Philip Schumacher Threw Himself in a Pond and Was Drowned.

When Businer found the line he supposed it to be a trot-line and hauled it in to see what was on the other end. He was horrified to find a dead body. The deceased's hat was found on the bank. The body was fully dressed except that the shoes were missing. The deceased was a teamster. He leaves a wife and four children, all grown but one, who is 12 years old.

At his late residence, $710 Ohio avenue, it was learned that the deceased had driven a team at Achler's brick yard for twenty-seven years, but some time ago this yard shut down and he has since been out of work. Since then he has been despondent and physically ill besides. He had two sunstrokes in the last few years, and this rendered him a little flighty at times. He retired as usual last night, but his wife awoke between 3 and 4 o'clock and missed him. He had arisen and dressed himself and slipped out of the house unheard in his slippers. He took the clothesline from the house.

The body was removed to the Morgue and the Coroner notified. The body was removed to the Morgue and the Coroner notified.

The Clayton-Forest Park Railroad.

The transfer of the Clayton and Forest Park Railroad's property, consisting of the tracks and roadbed, from Forest Park to Clayton, from the railroad company to W. H. Swift of the Fruin-Bambrick Construction Co., took place Wednesday evening. Just what will be the fate of the proposed railroad, which only partially exists, is not known. The Missouri Railroad Co., it is said, is anxious to buy it in, but there is a hitch that is delaying the deal. At present the property is a white elephant to the Fruin-Bambrick Co., who expended $15,00) worth of labor and material in building it.

The St. Louis, Chicago and St. Paul Railroad, known as the Bluff Line, has erecied a substantial freight and passenger depot at Second and Biddle streets. The establishment of its depot and terminal yards here is another move in line with the rapid improvement and growth of the city. The establishment of the depot at Second and Biddle will enhance the value of business property in the vicinity. The switching facilities are good and there is talk of several big deals in that neighborhood.

who terrorized the whole neighborhood for months, has been declared insane and is shut up in the asylum. It is a matter of regret that her mental condition was not inquired into long ago.

No woman in St. Louis ever caused the trouble and grief and suffering that Mrs. Ackerman has. She was a dangerous woman in more ways than one. She always carried a pistol and was permitted to intrude upon the privacy of homes through the general fear in which she was held by ladies living near her. They were afraid to order her out of the house for fear of her weapon, or what is worse, her slander-ous tongue. She is alleged to have made it a practice to call upon gentleman living in the neighborhood and charge their wives with infidelity, maming Mr. Ackerman as the lover if each case.

Through these tactics Mrs. Ackerman succeeded in breaking, up one home, and bringing sorrow into several others. Women above reproach were invariably the victims of her calumny, and one young lady fied the neighborhood to escape further slander and persecution. The finding that the woman is insane sets at rest the many wild stories circulated about her neighbors, one or two of which she succeeded in getting into the newspapers.

The Ackerman divorce case, which was brought by the husband, who alleges drunkenness in his petition, stands in statu quo.

THE STATE CONVENTION CALL.

The State Central Committee cannot ignore the resolution of the caucus of Democratic legislators and State officers asking that a convention to take action on the money question be called without ignoring the wishes of nine-tenths of the Democrats of the State.

No one can doubt that this resolution expresses the will of an overwhelming majority-of all except a small clique of bankers, Federal office-holders and patronage brokers—of the Democratic party.
The evidence to this effect is irresistible.

State Central Committee is the agent of the party. Its sole function is to execute the will of the voters. It has no power outside of this function. Its duty, when the will of the party is manifested as it has been manifested in the matter of this convention, is to give ffect to that will. If it fails to do this it fails to fulfill the purpose for which

So completely is the committee the $69,365,000, or $11,157 a mile, or 25 per cent creature of the party that the voters of their actual value. have the right and the power to set it aside and act independently of it at any of the State Board of Equalization, or time. If it appears that the committee is unwilling to respond to the demand owner consider 25 per cent a fair assess for a convention the voters may take the matter in their own hands. The State? county committees may organize an executive committee for the purpose of tion of other property-which the Gov calling the convention.

The county committee method is more cumbrous and slow than the issuing of a call by the State Committee and, therefore, no time is to be lost if the convention is to meet by Aug. 1, the date fixed by the caucus. If the State Committee does not act promptly the local com mittees should begin the work.

A PLAW IN THE LOGIC.

Comptroller Eckels uttered a great truth in his speech at the Detroit Chamber of Commerce when he said, "The commercial world has with unvarying precision drawn the true distinction which exists between the true value in the nation's currency and the sign of value affixed to it, and standing upon that line of demarcation, it has been as indifferent to the laws of great nations as of small."

It is apparent to any intelligent man who reads this axiom that Mr. Eckels reasons falsely when he says it follows that every country must adapt its currency to the demands of international commerce or to the wishes of other nations. If "commerce is indifferent to the laws of great nations as well as small" it follows that the money of any country and its currency laws have little or no effect on its international trade.

As a matter of fact international trade is not carried on in the currencies of trading nations, but is pure barter on a commodity basis. When money metal is used in the settlement of balances it measured by weight and goes for its market value and not by the coin value stamped on its face. It is used only change; that is to say, when the rate of export is less than the rate of exchange. To have a metal money with a fixed value at the mints of the trading nations merely simplifies the exchange, but offers no real advantage to either.

Mr. Eckels, therefore, promulgates a fallacy, proved so by his own axiom and by experience, when he says no na-tion can be independent in the matter of currency. The United States, England, Germany and other gold standard countries trade to mutual advantage with countries having every form of currency from gold to inconvertible paper. Mexico's standard is silver monometallism, yet even the gold organs must admit progress and prosperity and the ple is money of the mints, stamped with anxiety of every gold nation to trade

If there is any form of inder laws and standards, and if we are de-pendent on other nations for ours we are guilty of committing great folly and greater injustice at the demand of the money power, which wants not the best medium of exchange, but the highest

The Post-Dispatch frequently has mough advertising to fill to overflowing every column of other St. Louis news papers, yet it prints this advertising in the best possible shape and also prints the best afternoon newspaper in the United States. It does this by making a paper large enough to include both the news and the advertising, so that the interest of neither reader nor advertise is sacrificed.

The popularity of the Sunday Post Dispatch 's proof of its superior excel lence and to-morrow's issue will appea to its readers more strongly than ever Some of the striking features of the coming edition are set forth elsewhere in an advertisement designed to give a glimpse only of the good things aration. The society gossip, both of men and women, is an additional feature in which the Sunday Post-Dispatch neve had a rival, and its news features will be as usual, without an equal for fullnes and variety. Those who read the Sunday Post-Dispatch have no need of any othe Sunday newspaper, since they find in it all that is most entertaining and instructive in every department of human activity.

THE PEOPLE OR THE LOBBY.

The news from Jefferson City make it evident that the lobby has captured the enlarged Labor and Railroad committees of the Senate and that a railroad fellow servant bill will not be reported to that body by either of them.

But the surrender of the committee to the lobby will not settle the question of fellow servant legislation. The test will be fought out on the floor of the Senate. Every member of the Senate will be forced to place himself on record as for or against a railroad fellow ser vant law. In this contest the people will not be deceived by any buncombe about a "general" fellow servant bill. Every Sen ator who supports the general fellow ser vant bill will be put down as the tool of the railroad lobby and an enemy of the people's cause. There can be no evasion of the square issue between the people and the lobby.

BAILROAD PROPERTY IN MISSOURI.

The report of the State Board of Rail road and Warehouse Commissioners fo 1893 contains a statement that "In the opinion of the Board the cost of railroad properties in Missouri may be fairly estimated at $45,000 per mile, as an aver age, including terminal properties, build ings and equipment," and that "on this basis the cost of the railroads of Mis sour! for 1892 would be $288,180,000."

The State Board of Equalization las year estimated the value of Missour railroad property for taxable purposes a $66,865,411.51, being just $222,314,589 less than the value placed upon it by the

In other words, the Railroad Commis sioners, from reports made to that department by the railroads themselves, valued the railroad properties at $45,000 a mile while the Board of Equalization assessed these properties at $10,755 a mile, or less than 23 per cent of their actual value Including roadbed, superstructure, rolling stock, buildings on right of way and bridges, the total assessment was only

Is it fair as compared with the valuaernor himself says is "assessed at about one-third its actual value."

The law declares that all property shall be assessed at its actual money value. Why, then, should the railroads escape at one-fourth or 25 per cent?

Moreover it is known that the railroad arnings in this State amount to 11 per cent on their assessed valuation. Do the farmers make 11 per cent on their investments in land and labor? Do the stockmen, the fruit raisers, the cattle herders make 11 per cent? Call off that lobby!

FOREIGN FINANCIERS AND AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

The question to be determined in the next national election is of our status as an independent and self-governing peo ple entitled to administer justice a ourselves regardless of the fact that outsiders will profit by the perpetuation of injustice.

The great English bankers whose allies in this country are the power behind the Wall street press, wish their relations with the United States to be adjusted o exactly the same basis as their relation vith India. They are determined tha financially our people shall occupy the same attitude towards them that th subjugated Hindoos do-that we shall be absolutely dependent on their views of justice and injustice without appeal. Modern finance makes the methods o Warren Hastings seem poor and clumsy Hastings was but a novice in extortion Roman provinces and collected so much of the unearned increment that at last when he was "caught in the gap," the Shorts whom he had been squeezing poured melted gold down his throat t give him the true taste of monometal lism. But such tyros as Crassus and Hastings knew nothing at all of the art of robbery in comparison with the great financiers of London. who by merely knowing how to use the rule of three car plunder not only subjugated India but subjugated America as well. It is against this foreign dominatio that the Democrats of Illinois are ar raying themselves as Americans, and in no other way could they be of so much service to the cause of free and just gov

the seal of their sovereignty and express-ing their undivided supremacy, every dollar that circulates is a token of their subjugation. If they yield the power of issuing or controlling the circulation of money here in America to English financiers or to their American agents and accomplices, they yield the right to be free, and it will be impossible that they can remain free or prosperous.

The world is not governed by statute law, but by the operation of such higher laws as those of trade economy, and if we surrender the administration of these to foreigners, neither constitutions nor congresses, nor navies, nor armies can prevent us from becoming their serfs. Mr. Fred Lehman of the Wabash, who was invited to appear before the Labor Committee of the Senate to represent the railroad side of the fellow servant bill, cted wisely in staying away. His abence accentuated the fact that the Mis-ouri Pacific stands alone in employing a lobby to control the Legislature. But a passive attitude of non-interference is not sufficient. The interests of all the railroads are threatened by the Missouri Pacific's lobby. They should enforce a demand on the Missouri Pacific that it call off its lobby and cease to prejudice the good repute and interests of the other

The ambition of Senators Lyman Goodykoontz, Harrison and Orchard is to be known as Filley's me-toos. Regularly on every ballot since the extra ession began they have voted against the Democrats and with the Filley Republicans. Should either of them ever tand for public office again it will be the plain duty of Democrats to vote against him and with the Republicans. A straight Republican is far better than renegade Democrat.

The Democrats of the Tennessee Legislature are doing their best to make Tennessee a sure Republican State next year. The decent Democrats of that State will not allow themselves to be placed in the position of being parties to a fraudulent count which seats in the Governor's chair a candidate who was defeated at the polls.

Secretary Morton must be more or less disgusted that Comptroller Eckels should be sent off to Detroit to sound a "keynote" when the head of the Agricultural Department has been so recently ordered to keep a closed mouth. No doubt Mr. Morton feels for the monent like going out and planting himself.

The spectacle of a lot of medical exerts testifying for pay on both sides of a case, which is presented by the Duestrow trial at Union, is a travesty on justice and a disgrace to the administration of criminal law. The judge and jury should throw all the expert evidence out and lecide the case on the general evidence.

Department has ascertained that there is a great deal of interest in the United States in the Monroe doctrine.

The administration was sharply criticised, and the newspapers, as well as the legislatures of many States, declared that the Monroe doctrine had been filled with holes, flouted, and allowed to be utterly disregarded without protest from the United States.

Even this did not bring out any explanation of just what the Government had done or why it believed the Monroe doctrine did not apply in the case of the British landing at Corinto. The criticism led to the adoption of a peculiar method of throwing light upon the situation as viewed by the administration and the reasons why it pursued the policy of non-intervention. It was decided to print extracts from the Monroe doctrine for public distribution, so that the people might see that the principles there laid down do not apply when a European power undertakes to collect indemnity from a sovereign American Republic in a manner which contemplates no seizure of territory and nothing except the settlement of the claim. The extracts were printed on three pages of a folder, without comment. The pamphlet bore the heading:

"Extracts from the Seventh Annual Message of James Monroe, President of the United States, Dated December 2, 1823. State pagers, first session Eighteenth Congress." There was a great deal of President Monroe's message given, but not one word explaining that its spirit had not been violated by allowing a European power to land forces on the shores of one of the Republics to collect an indemnity. The publication has been appreciated, As soon as it became known that the State Department had the Monroe doctrine printed, there was such a demand for the pamphlet that the edition was almost immediately exhausted. A second edition is rapidly metting away, and letters and telegrams are coming from all over the country asking for copies. The interest in the Monroe doctrine is much greater than the State Department supposed.

I do not feel inclined to find fault with your criticisms, but I think the matter you refer to should be judged in the light of circumstances existing at the time the things were done. I never had an idea of building up or fostering a personal following, but so far as politice should properly influence me in making appointments, I have tried to be Democratic and not proscriptive. I am glad you are frank enough to admit your participation in bringing about a condition in office holding which may not be all that could now be desired. Whether these appointees to place shall, in speech and action, behave decently towards the Administration under which they hold office must remain, to a large extent, a matter of taste and good breeding. There are, however, some officials who devote themselves so industriously to villification and abuse of those under whom they hold office as to indicate that their fidelity can not be trusted for the performance of their duties in a manner creditable to the Administration and who apparently assume they may spend the time they owe the public service in doing political mischief. In the interest of good government such office holders must not be surprised if they are summarily dealt with.

I have never ceased to wonder why the people of the South, furnishing so largely, as they do, products which are exported for gold, should be willing to submit to the disadvantages and losses of silver monometallism, and to content themselves with a depreciated and fluctuating currency while permitting others to reap a profit from the transmution of t April 26, 1895.-Hon. American citizenship in any part of our land, we should study the effects upon our party, and, consequently, upon our country, of a committal of the national Democracy to this silver aberration.

"If there are Democrats who suppose that our party can stand upon a platform embodying such doctrine, either through its affirmative strength or through the perpiexity of our opponents on the same proposition, or if there are Democrats who are willing to turn their backs upon their party associates in the hope that free and unlimited and independent coinage of silver can win a victory without the aid of either party organization, they should deceive themselves no longer, nor longer refuse to look in the face the results that will follow the defeat, if not the disintegration of the Democratic party upon the issue which tempts them from their allegiance. If we should be forced away from our traditional doctrine of sound and safe money our old antagonists will take the field on the platform which we abandon, and neither the votes of reckless Democrate nor reckless Republicans will avail to stay their easy march to power. Five-ounce gloves are used in the bouts, and, although they look big and soft, Frede will no doubt bear witness to the fact that Dixon punches as hard with them as a mule can kick. Frede did not last long enough before Dixon to stop many of them, but what he got was enough to stop him, and it is exceedingly probable that whatever ambition he ever had to shine as a professional puglist has left him entirely.

He weighed 137 nounds last night, but he

He weighed 137 pounds last night, but in view of the fact that an immense audience of his friends had gathered to see his effort before Dixon, the latter's manager obligingly consented to waive all objections to the extra seven pounds and let the bout proceed. O'Rourke said that it was giving Frede seventeen pounds the best of it,

JOE FREDE. which meant that Dixon weighed 120 pounds, but the little darkey looked at least five pounds heavier.

Frede went into the ring with a confident air about him, but the expression on his face soon changed after Dixon crowded matters with him. The little darkey's speed, hitting powers and wonderful cleverness smothered him completely and he went to pieces and lost his head entirely when Dixon commenced to circle around him like a cooper does while finishing up a new barrel.

a cooper does while finishing up a new barrel.

Early in the contest Frede slipped and went down while trying to avoid his clever opponent. He took his time about getting up, but Dixon made him go down again in a hurry, duplicating the trick several times before Frede was finally stretched on his back and counted out. Dixon's left did all the damage. He shoved it into Frede at will. The latter was not hurt to any extent and recovered his bearings a few minutes after Dixon finished him.

The bout was cleverly managed and was immensely enjoyed by the large audience present, excepting, of course, Frede's North St. Louis friends, who were greatly disappointed at their favorite's downfail. Frede wanted to try himself out against a good man and no one who saw the bout will deny that he did not get plenty of action last night. action last night.

"I am giving it to you straight that I never felt better in my life, and have taken off 13 pounds. Nothing ever pleased me better than my release from the Cincinnatis, and if ever I played ball in my life I'll play it this year. Some people may have their own ideas about my work fast season with the Reds, but I'll tell you truly that it was that bum atmosphere, coupled with the rankest water in the universe, that kept me down. But I'll tell you once more this is going to be my baseball year, and no mistake. I feel out of sight."

Yesterday's Games.

At Philadelphia—Philadelphia, 8; New York, 5. Batteries: McGill and Buckley; German, Farrell and Schriever. Base hits—Philadelphia, 15; New York, 6. Errors—Philadelphia, 4; New York, 1.
At Boston—Boston, 37; Washington, 11.
Batteries: Sullivan, Dolan, Tenny and Warner; Mercer, Anderson and Mahoney. Base hits—Boston, 19; Washington, 6. Errors—Boston, 6; Washington, 10.

How They Stand.

Game at Sportsman's Park. The Belleville Clerks and the Shamrocks will occupy Sportsman's Park diamond Sunday afternoon, and the Illinois club, which gave the Browns such a good fight, will be at its best. The two clubs are cracks in the amateur class and good sport may be looked for.

Base Ball Notes.

Jake Beckley has been appointed captain of the Pittsburgs.

"Parson" Nicholson will not last long with Washington. He made five errors in yesterday's game.

With a good man like Dick Buckley behind the bat to steady him, Wille McGill can pitch winning ball.

Pittsburg has got the worst gang of ruffians in the National League. Beckley and Donovan must be squelched.

Pittaburg has got the worst gang of ruffans in the National League. Beckley and Donovan must be equelched.

Sam Thompson's home run drive in the ninth saved Friday's game for the Philles. He made it with two men on the bases. The Quincy Club is accused of trying to persuade Capt. Paul Hines of the Burlington team to jump his contract.

Stafford continues to hold his own at second base for New York. He seems to be an experiment ne longer.

St. Louis is at the bottom of the ladder, having lost more games than any club in the League.

The Browns will never play winning ball until they get couple of good reliable stickers, who can bat out runs.

With a team that would back them up properly Theodore Breitenstein and thur Clarkson could hold their own with any pitchers in the League.

Charley Comiskey's St. Paul team beat Kansas City hands down Friday. And still they say that Comiskey's days of usefulness are past and gone.

Von der Ahe should not hesitate to put up a cash consideration for "Tuck" Turner's release. His hitting abilities would greatly strengthen the Browns. Turner is with Philadelphia.

Pitchers Nichols and Stivitts and Catchers Ganzell' and Ryan will arrive in St. Louis ahead of the Boston team, which opens with the Browns at Sportsman's Park Monday.

The Boston beanesters fattened their batting off of Pitchers Mercer and Anderson at Washington Friday, making a total of eighteen hits. Link Lowe is creditted with five and Long made two home runs.

TOUCHED THE JUROR.

The Cooing of a Baby Leads to His Rejection.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 4.—The cooing of a baby in its mother's arms resulted in a juror being rejected in the case against Louisa Worthington for the murder of Henry Baddesley.

"If you were certain that Mrs. Worthington committed the murder, would you bring in a verdict knowing that it meant death for her." Juror Talesman was asked.

The juror looked at Mrs. Worthington and her baby for several seconds. At that instant the little one cooed at her mother. "No," said the man slowly, "I would not."

ILOSSSTEIN,

Browing Belief That He and Not Gen Miles May Command the Army.

signment. 'The Man Who Talks Once' was the name given to Gen. Ruger by the Crow Indians in the Swordbearer campaign, in 1837. The campaign itself made a deep impression on President Cleveland, so it is said, and of Ruger's determination 'and straightforwardness.

There is an undercurrent of feeling that Gen. Miles may not come to Washington as the successor to Lieut. Gen. Schofied, and that Gen. Ruger may command the army in effect, if not in name.

Gen. Miles was once supposed to have made some remarks, criticising the President for the disposition of troops during the strike in Chicago last summer, and, although the offensive criticism was at once denied, it seems to be a fact that Gen. Miles is not so popular at the White House as the "Man Who Talks Once."

In view of the fact that the new drill regulations, which Gen. Ruger is supposed to be detailed to revise, could be handled as well at Governor's Island or Chicago as anywhere else the opinion is growing rapidly that Ruger is the coming man.

CLEVELAND DENOUNCED.

The Administration Repudiated by Chicago Democratic Convention.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 4,-The County Democratic convention held here to-day preparatory to the Democratic State monetary conference to be held in June, developed into a hot anti-Cleveland gathering. The President was denounced and repudiated amid the wild applause of the delegates who greeted every criticism of the Administration with enthusiasm. Ex-Judge McCennell, of Chicago, President of the Iroquois Club, delivered a lengthy address in which he declared that the President, elected by Democrats, had become the prophet and the standard bearer of everything but true Democracy. The platform adopted by the convention declares for the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1. A determined effort will be made to have the same platform adopted by the State convention in June].

day and she has never been called to account for it.

One of the brightest woman orators ever heard in St. Louis is Rev. Miss Anna Shaw. She sailed into the suffrage fight in Kansas hammer and tongs, and her arguments had a telling effect. She told of the sell-out of the Republican party to the liquor interests for 40,000 votes, which sounded the death knell of prohibition in the State. Prohibition was not thrown aside because it had not proven a success, but to catch 40,000 liquor votes. Gov. Morrill came in for his share of the scorching. She charged him with selling the State morally to redeem it financially. The promises which Gov. Morrill made were recited and the manner in which he broke them was not forgotten. "It seems men never will get any sense," was the clear-cut deduction she reached from a review of the facts. They believed Gov. Morrill once and he went back on them. And they will believe him next year and the next year, and so on year by year.

other means have failed; the sales of them have exceeded the most sanguine expectations and is still increasing; more of them have been sold than of any other medicine ever placed on the market in the same space of time. The druggists say so; they are placed in a position to know. Does this not prove their worth—their efficiency? The druggists order them because the people demand them. The people buy them because they want them. They recognise the curative properties of these wonderful remedies. If Munyon's cures did not do their work the public would not buy them, the druggists could not sell them. Is not this true? All druggists sell Munyon's cures.

WHAT IS HE THERE FOR?

One Deputy Marshal Who is Not Out for His Health.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 4.—A prominent citizen of Rolle, N. D., telegraphs the Journal that the Indian difficulty there has been fomented and stirred up by the scheming of the Deputy United States Marshals to get fees and mileage. He charges, and offers to back up his charges with affidavilts, that there would never have been any trouble if Deputy Schindler had not caused a great number of strests on fictitious or trivial charges for what there was in it. Schindler devotes a good deal of time to looking up supposed irregularities, swearing out warrants and taking the supposed offenders on long railroad trips to Bismarck or Grand Forks, where occasionally they plead guilty, are sentenced to a few days in jail and are then released. He is charged with procuring the sale of liquor to the half breeds in order to trump up cases, and even arrests his own friends and relatives who want a trip at Government expense. Recently he arrested his brother-in-law and took him before Judge Thomas. Rolette County has no jail, and jail sentences are served out by Schindler's prisoners at their own homes. An investigation by the Washington authorities is demanded. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 4.-A promi
